SENDS GREETINGS AROUND WORLD

The New Year Signal From Washington

Marked the Death of the Old and and Birth of the New

> Washington, January 1, 1905 .-Lieutenant Commander E. D. Havden, in charge of the Time Service of the United States Naval Observatory, sent the New Year's good morning flash all over the world at the beginning of 1905 from the Naval Observatory. The flash was to indicate the exact beginning of the new year, and that is where the sentiment began and ended The officials, however, by their memoranda, are able to keep check on longitude; sometning which was impossible in days before such signals were utilized. A new feature of the signals this year is that arrangements were made to send the birth of the year to Uncle Sam's vessels which are rigged with wireless telegraphy. This was another point scored in modern science. The effort will he to get the signals to vessels at a maximum distance of 250 miles from shore. The ships were sent, besides the midnight flashes, other signals at 1, 2 and 3 a m.

The signals last year reached Lick Observatory in .05 seconds; Greenwich Observatory in England 33 seconds; National Observatory Given a Beautiful Lace of Mexico, in .19 seconds; Sidney (Australia) Observatory, in 3 05 seconds and Wellington Observatory, New Zealand, in 4 seconds. For the second time in the world's history a greeting was sent out from the United States to all other countries the message being flashed over the wires and cables of the Western Union Telegraph Co. For almost half the distance-12.000 miles—it was carried by the cables of this country and repeated by its of this country and repeated by its cable stations.

The message did not only travel the 25,000 miles of the earth's circumference but it was relayed to each cable and telegraph office in the world so as to reach all lands almost simultaneously, to do which it had to travel over 1,000.000 miles of electric and cable wires.

The news of the birth of the new year was heralded through times signals sent out from the U.S Naval Observatory at Washington to San Francisco, thence to Hawaii, Wake Island, the Phillipines, Hong Kong, Signapore, Madras, Bombay in India, Aden on the Red Sea, Port Said, Gibreltar, Plymouth, England, Novascotia and back to Washington-and all in 10
